

VOLUME 1, ISSUE 9

Donkey, Tiger, or?

Are we just going to keep playing whack-a-mole? When do we say enough is enough? And how do we move forward to keep our kids free?

After all, there are infinite ways in which our values can be attacked. When we attempt to protect one, another attack pops up that harms our children, erodes our families, and destroys our values - all the while being told to trust in the system, trust those in authority, trust that this is all being done with only our best interests at heart.

Do we truly believe that our schools are doing a good job educating our children?

- that our schools are academically successful?
- that our children are not being taught Critical Race Theory, intersectionality, toxic masculinity?
- that our schools are not usurping the role of parents through “equity,” “gender equity policy,” CBIM, free breakfast and lunch for all, mask mandates, social distancing, contact tracing, vaccine mandates, etc?

We can try to address the administration, school board, state and federal governments but to what end? If we want to save our children, our values and our freedom, we need to recognize what we are doing...

The donkey told the tiger, "The grass is blue."

The tiger replied, "No, the grass is green."

The discussion became heated, and the two decided to submit the issue to arbitration, so they approached the lion.

As they approached the lion on his throne, the donkey started: "Your Highness, isn't it true that the grass is blue?" (continued on page 2)

The lion replied: "If you believe it is true, the grass is blue."

The donkey persisted: "The tiger disagrees with me, contradicts me and annoys me. Please punish him." The lion then proclaimed: "The tiger will be punished with 3 days of silence." The donkey jumped with joy and went on his way, content and repeating "The grass is blue, the grass is blue..."

The tiger asked the lion, "Your Majesty, why have you punished me? After all, the grass is green!"

The lion replied, "You've known and seen the grass is green."

The tiger asked, "So why do you punish me?"

The lion replied, "The reason for the punishment has nothing to do with the question of whether the grass is blue or green. The punishment is because it is degrading for a brave, intelligent creature like you to waste time arguing with an ass, and on top of that, you came and bothered me with that question just to validate something you already knew was true!"

The biggest waste of time is arguing with the fool and fanatic who doesn't care about Truth or Reality, but only the victory of his beliefs and illusions. Never waste time on discussions that make no sense. There are people who, for all the evidence presented to them, will not understand. They may be blinded by ego, hatred and resentment. They may need to be right even though they aren't. And they may be those for whom power is the essence of life.

Let's not confuse the substance of the disagreement with the purpose for the disagreement. When IGNORANCE SCREAMS, intelligence moves on.

Are we going to listen to or become a donkey? Are we going to be a tiger who is just kept occupied fighting for the scraps thrown to us? Or are we going to be wise and find a solution?
